Plan to connect Usman Road flyovers

In an effort to make the two flyovers on Usman Road in T. Nagar more viable, the Corporation is considering connecting them and extending the combined entity upto Anna Salai.

The entry and exit ramps will be removed while the central portions will be connected to form a single flyover.

If connecting the two flyovers is not feasible, the civic body will consider extending the South Usman Road flyover alone up to Anna Salai, Mayor Saidai S. Duraisamy announced in the budget meeting of the Chennai Corporation on March 12. The feasibility study, he said, will be conducted by consultants.

The proposal is part of a larger traffic management system being mooted by the civic body. Duraisamy said that the Corporation will increase co-ordination of all departments with the traffic police.

The flyover at North Usman Road-Kodambakkam High Road junction was constructed at a cost of Rs. 9.72 crores and the one at Usman Road-Duraisamy Road junction at a cost of Rs. 19.8 crores during the DMK regime. However, the two flyovers only added to the woes of residents and shoppers. The one at the Usman Road-Duraisamy Road junction does not permit free movement of vehicles on service lanes. The Fire & Rescue Services Department too had complained that fire tenders cannot gain access to Ranganathan Street, Natesan Street and Ramasamy Street. A few months ago, members of T. Nagar Welfare Associations had called for demolition of the Usman Road-Duraisamy Road flyover. Report courtesy The Hindu.

NO HOLDS BARRED

By M. A. SADANAND

Early men lived in caves and their sole supply of light was the good old sun during the day. So all those chaps went to bed early and became healthy and wise for centuries until busybodies like Thales and Benjamin Franklin and Fukushima, Japan's latest producer of sorrow, brought in artificial light to enlighten the world and madden some chaps in Kudankulam who yearn for the safe old troglodyte days when no one had to work to live except to kill for the tasty raw flesh of animals or brethren. They shut shop with the sun and snored away the night without TV and sleep-breaking devices.

How lucky they were! They perhaps slept until the noon-heat woke them up after a whole night of baby-planting. There was so much peace for man and horror for the animal world until a scientist Megasaur revolted and swallowed up the human race leaving just a bit of chromosomes for man as a life jacket.

The brainy chaps then obliterated the granter of life and invented Fukushimas, and the kinky Kudamkulamites who want me not to use my computer when I want but must await the pleasure of Tamilnadu Electricity Board to come out with the threat of further reduction of enlightenment time.

How can the poor policemen hunt down bank robbers like the quintet gang if raids cannot be conducted at night when the whole city is a desert of darkness and a haven for criminals! Daytime work for ordinary lazy heads consists of gulping endless cups of energising tea in canteens and talking politics and shop. If the 10 to 5 work is pruned because of the Kudankulam heroes, we don't need Pakistan or China as our dear villains. We can be proud of our self reliance and auto-destructive mechanism.

Candle stick making industry will get a boost and Amma's generous gift of laptops to students will fire the imagination of some future Steve Job into inventing a life sustaining thingammy which will make nuclear devices look dead as a dodo. Anthony and Amma, are you listening?
